Traveling opens the world for us: discovering new places, meeting new people and broadening our horizons. At Amadeus, we create technology for better journeys, to get the world in motion. In Würselen/Aachen, we jointly develop the technology for the best possible travel experience. Start your journey with us as

Working student in software development (m/f/d)

in part-time (10-20h) at the location Würselen/Aachen

Summary of the role:

- Develop code used by the world’s leading tour operators and travel agencies
- Ensure rock-solid performance and reliability in a complex technical environment
- Drive the evolution of travel by building the next generation of leisure travel solutions
- Help get the world moving again, in the sector that will recover from the crisis first: leisure

- In an agile work environment you support the further development of our products and platforms with curiosity, motivation and enthusiasm for technical solutions.
- You develop solutions and workflows in close collaboration with your colleagues as part of a Scrum Team.
- In addition to development tasks, you take over maintenance work, support the testing and use your knowledge for error analyses and troubleshooting.

As ideal candidate:

- You are studying computer science, business informatics or similar.
- You have knowledge in CI/CD tools, such as: Ansible, Jenkins or Git.
- You prefer to automate repetitive tasks instead of doing these manually.
- You like to work with Linux systems and know how to keep them up to date.
- You don’t shy away from databases like MariaDB.
- Familiarity with a scripting language, ideally Python is a plus.
- Besides good English you can connect to others in German.

Why join us?

- State of the art technology and opportunities to learn and grow
- Agile teams, real collaboration and impact on million travellers
- Hybrid working and flexible working times
- Competitive compensation and hands-on experience
